

Martin Canyon Creek Trail

Location: Oakland, California

Difficulty: Easy

Foot Traffic: Moderate

Parking Fee: N/A

Weather:

January 57/42

February 62/45

March 66/46

April 68/47

May 74/51

June 80/54

July 86/58

August 86/58

September 85/57

October 78/54

November 67/48

December 58/42

Martin Canyon Creek trail is 2.9 miles in duration and moderately trafficked. It is easily accessible, and advertised on BART as being "BARTABLE" as well. One of the amazing things about this hike is the views that are offered. The trail offers sterling views of the Tri-Valley region, the canyons leading to the west, and Canyon Creek; which it follows for 0.89 miles of the trip. During the portion of the trail which follows the creek, there are many large Bay Trees which form a canopy, and provide some relief from the hot summer sun. This trail is good for mountain biking, running, bird watching and it is also kid-friendly. The trail is very well maintained, and easy to navigate. Dogs are allowed, but they must be kept on a leash.

